"Have you a father and mother?"

"Yes, father has no work, and he is sick, and so is mother, too."

"Have you any brothers and sisters?"

"Yes, four sisters and a brother, eleven years of age, and a baby, eight months old—he is a boy, too."

Just then entered a butcher's boy with a basket on his arm, who walked forward to the desk and deposited a bill of exchange for the same time.

"There's four pounds of a chine of beef for the poor, Captain, from my boss."

"This man is Fred Deem, and his store is at No.

614 Eleventh avenue, and he says for to please give him the bill."

The little girl looked wistfully at the lump of meat and then looked at the butcher's boy, and in the officer's boy looked at the Captain.

whereupon the Captain turned his gaze on the receptor. After pondering for a moment the Captain said:

"Little girl, you better take that lump of meat home and get it cooked, and here is an order for four loaves of bread, and you can get as much soup as you want at the kitchen, corner of Tenth avenuce and sixty-second street. But, let me see, how are you going to cook the meat if you have got no fire?"

"The little ragged creature, being now perfectly happy, left the station house with the piece of beef and a brown paper to take it to her mother, and thus one family has been made to rejoice through the beneficent spirit of charity.

The kitchen, located at the corner of Tenth avenuce and sixty-second street, receives no contributions in money, but any donations of bread, meat, potatoes or clothing will be thankfully received and distributed by him among the poor of the district.

Brooklyn Soup Houses.

The wants of the poor of Brooklyn have not decreased certainly to any perceptible degree with the near approach of spring. All public works are suspended and business generally remains stagnant. The laboring classes and unemployed mechanics, who have managed to struggle through the long, weary, idle months of December, January and February, now that March has set in find themselves reduced to utter necessity, and in hundreds of cases without other means of sustenance. The soup houses which were opened a month ago find the drain upon their resources growing greater each day. The principal soup house is that of the Fourth Precinct Temporary Relief Association, which was opened on Vanderbilt street, near Tenth avenue, under the direction of Captain Allaire. A representative of the HERALD visited the kitchen in question yesterday afternoon, and in the course of a conversation with the Captain and his assistant, learned that the number of the number relieved each day, since the fire, were first lighted beneath the kettles, were as follows:

PICTURES OF POVERTY.

The Rich and the Poor at St. John's

Chapel Yesterday—The Sunny Side of a Bad Picture—A Sick Girl Sewing for Bread—The Sisters of a Dead Hero in Want—Generous Responses from the Churches.

Yesterday witnessed no falling off in the number of those who came to St. John's chapel to apply for city, and as they pressed around the doors of the chapel, their hungry eyes and gaunt faces drew tears of pity from the hundreds of ladies who during the greater part of the day were present. One little girl came attended by her brother, no bigger than herself, and between them they carried a basket in which it would seem both might have hidden. The little girl was spokeswoman, and in a childish, lisping way she told her story—and such a story! A father lost at sea; a mother worn out by constant watching for the ship that had sailed—
